DHS Annual Show Packs The House

Musical director Roger Jarvis opened the DHS choir's sixth annual show at the high school auditorium Friday night by introducing the Dynatonics. After their two songs, the chorus opened with "Fadin' And Fighin'" and "The Martins And The Crys," theme songs for the show.

Kent Paige warbled "I Didn't Know the Gun Was Loaded" and Wendell Thornton, Jr., gave out with "Good Old Mountain Dew," followed by Tommy Sangolo's rendition of "Lazy Bones" and Peter Smith's version of "It's In The Book," a number that brought down the house. Phyllis Paulding, the only female soloist, also made a hit when she grabbed Carlton Tripp and sang "A Bushel And A Peck." Nancy Crocker teamed with Jerry MacIntyre in "You'd Better Not Do That" and Joe DeLoraine added unexpected excitement when he prepared to sing "This Old House." Other numbers were Richard McGrath's "Lucky Old Sun" and Gordon Cushing's revised "STILL Of The Night."

The New Look

The "Six Sisters" in their grain bag costumes did a chorus line and "Sisters," a snappy song and dance routine, and right from the Kentucky Derby came a visit from Son Biscuit, the horse. After Nancy Crocker and Ann Barker's clever execution of "Buttons And Bows," Patti Lucy, accompanist for the show, played a piano solo. Cliff Worcester was the able emcee.

Mrs. Kenneth Howland and Mrs. Richard Crocker arranged the choreography, and Donald Prigge supervised the lighting. Mrs. Florence Harrison and Mrs. Russell Doyle were in charge of make-up; Francis Churchill, staging; and Mrs. Elmer Churchill, programs.

Committees

Phyllis Paulding and Barbara Wentworth handled publicity and Gayle Campbell, Susan Woodward and Marcia Howard were on the ticket committee. The staging committee included Olga Johnson.

The goal of the National Blood Program is to provide without charge blood and blood derivatives.

Available Here

By making blood available to local physicians, we help to safeguard the health of our community as well as provide blood for elderly and indigent patients. In the event of disaster or national emergency we can meet the large-scale needs for blood by cooperating in giving blood to the Red Cross National Blood Program. As extra insurance, this program
